As the principal, I am responsible for advancing classroom instruction by monitoring and coaching teachers to make them the best educators they can be. A Week in the Life of a Principal.

Since I am on the run so much and hardly in my office, I have several piles on my desk at the Lifestyle LifeStyle Center. I meet with students that are having a difficult day, requesting a change, or just needing someone to listen; I am available for recess and lunch breaks, as it is time to talk to my students. Assembly is held every day but the main one is on Monday which is in this order: Singing of the national anthem, the state anthem, the school song in Bahasa Malaysia, the Rukunegara pledge, announcements by a duty prefect, book review by a librarian, giving away of prizes for competitions won, speech by the headmaster and finally the school song in English. Leave this field blank. As the instructional leader of the school, designing professional development and modeling effective practices is absolute necessary. Throughout the day there are emails, phone calls, and general check-ins from staff.
